

Welcome to AKILAWORKSONGS.com

Join us in acknowledging indigenous peoples who first inhabited and cultivated the land and the environment upon which we reside and work. We pay homage to the spirit of those honorable ones who sought to maintain their culture and traditions despite the war that was placed upon them by colonizers and capitalists. Moving forward, we will work more intentionally to acknowledge, engage, and develop the relationships we have with indigenous communities in New York and beyond.

In spirit, in principle, in theory, and in practice, we support the work of oppressed people who seek to be their full human selves. One press release or community event at a time, we will continue to devote our time and talents to telling the stories of self-determining human beings who seek to be in harmony within themselves, with one another, and with the natural world. Support us in making the next three decades, an era that our ancestors can be proud of.

Lovingly,

April R. Silver
Founder and CEO
AKILA WORKSONGS
Communications. For The Culture.
Since 1993